

Grundfos webinars put a new spin on learning

Of all the changes that have come about to our working lives in 2020, one of the biggest has given us a lot of new opportunities to learn. One key route for satisfying this thirst for knowledge, has been the development of a wide range of Grundfos webinars that have all been designed to appeal to any professional that has an interest in pump solutions.

Today there are 32 different webinar topics available and almost 5000 people have taken the opportunity to gain access to the wide range of topics, each of which is delivered by selected members of our experienced staff. Every tailored course offers an in-depth insight into a range of subjects whether you are involved in building services, industrial applications or the water industry. Plus, as you would expect from a pump solutions innovator such as Grundfos, there are many new themes in the pipeline.

As things will hopefully get back to normal in 2021, we do hope to be back on track with our classroom Pump School courses and of course our ECADEMY remains open for business 24/7. All of which is great news and we hope it is reassuring to know that there are still multiple ways to get access to pump knowledge.

If you would like to catch up on any of these webinars you can, as recordings are available on-demand. Simply visit www.grundfos.co.uk and click on the training tab, where they are ready for you to watch, as and when it suits you.