

For noise awareness training that's out of this world!

Join us at our 30th One Day Noise Awareness Training Course on 13 June 2018 at the National Space Centre, Leicester for training we think is out of this world!

Our one day noise awareness course offers comprehensive training on how and why to measure noise, what to measure and how often you need to measure it. The course covers everything from basic noise theory through to how to use sound level meters and noise dosimeters in your noise risk assessments. In addition our course tutor, who is a highly-experienced Acoustician and Member of the Institute of Acoustics, is on hand throughout the day to advise on solutions for controlling noise impacts, PPE and ways to reduce noise in the first place.

Win a special birthday prize!

As this will be our 30th Noise Awareness Course we're offering one lucky participant the opportunity to win a special prize on the day.

The course costs just £265 (+vat) and includes all course materials and lunch as well as entrance to the National Space Centre with its six interactive galleries, planetarium and 42m high rocket.
