

Another successful Speedor installation

Hart's flagship Speedor Super high speed door, seen here, has been in continuous production since 1983 and many thousands of doors have been installed on challenging sites across the world.

Speedor Super, the leading door brand from Hart Door Systems, is in demand for its energy saving, high speed door, and environmental standards. Used predominately as an external door with good wind resistance and often in high traffic situations, Speedors are built to last through their robust and reliable construction.

Speedor Super's main features include tensioned door curtain, sophisticated, state of the art control with a host of features, variable speed options including soft start and safety systems including safe edge deep rubber seal on the leading edge of the door.

Options include a break-out feature and full width vision panel. The size range is up to 6M wide and 6M high
