

Relieve your safety pain at SafeStart's May workshops

SafeStart, the world's leading safety training programme, announces a free 1-day Discovery Workshop in Manchester 22nd May.

Attendees will leave with a clear understanding of how SafeStart gives people the skills and awareness to avoid making unintentional mistakes that lead to injury. The programme is designed to help companies move beyond compliance in the workplace to improve safety performance, employee engagement, culture, home safety and business results.

Discovery Workshop – 22nd May

Created for safety, operations and HR managers, the 1-day Discovery Workshop addresses key workplace safety issues including human error, recurring injuries, lack of employee engagement, and the perceived conflict between production and safety, common safety pain points that every manager encounters at one time or another. Experts at the event will outline the factors that lead to these issues and provide insight into how they can be solved through the SafeStart programme. Successful case studies will be shared.

Larry Wilson, Author of SafeStart said "Even when exceptional risk reduction measures are in place, common safety pain points can negatively affect any workplace in any industry. Employers must continue to develop their workforce and give them skills that will improve their safety both at work and home. We look forward to welcoming people to our event in Warrington."
